Your guide Ian Hutton, is Lord Howe Island's resident expert, is a biologist, naturalist and photographer. He will show you in seven days what would take you weeks to discover on your own.

Lord Howe Island lies approximately 700 km northeast of Sydney in the South Pacific Ocean. The island was inscribed on the World Heritage list in 1982 for its natural heritage of universal value.

The beautiful landscape is dominated by the twin peaks of Mount Gower and Mount Lidgbird, both of which tower above the central lowlands and the surrounding sea.

This small and pristine island boasts tall rainforests, thronging seabird colonies and coral reefs with abundant marine life. Only 400 visitors are allowed on the island at any one time, so humans have had a minimal impact here. Each day Ian will take you to different parts of the island, as you learn about its history, flora, fauna, marine life and geology. He will also take you on leisurely walks to explore the mainland's many natural wonders.

The seas around the island offer a fabulous mix of tropical and temperate marine life. You will be reef walking, beach-combing, snorkelling and cruising in a glass-bottom boat.

There will be ample time and flexibility for individual and group interests to be enjoyed. Evening talks and slide shows will add to your experience, and reference books on the history and natural history of the island (mostly written by Ian Hutton) will be available for your use during the tour.

Join Ian to discover this natural paradise for yourself.
